SHAMS THAT WRECK HEALTH.

WHILE we should be loath to needlessly deprecate, and have never wantonly sought to belittle any other preparation alleged to possess medicinal properties, we feel impelled in the interest of those whose health is impaired, to warn them against certain shams which, if used persistently, utterly wreck it. These are cheap local bitters, tonics, eye-openers, &c., that are often attractively labelled, and are commended to persons who inquire for Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, as productive of like effects, and similar in composition to that standard medicine. In some instances these articles are put up in bottles and with labels approximating in appearance to the genuine. When counterfeits of the true Bitters have been discovered, their vendors have been prosecuted, with this wholesome result—the enforced discontinuance of the individual traffic, and the award of exemplary damages, as is fully affirmed by the U. S. court records of New Orleans, St. Louis, San Francisco and other points, and more recently that of New York, in the case of Hostetter & Smith vs. Adams & Co., of said city, being one of the most important decisions on the subject of imitating Trade Marks that has transpired for many years, and in which we (Hostetter & Smith) obtained a Decree of Perpetual Injunction, together with all damages and costs.

Yet the cupidity of unscrupulous traders on the public health and pocket so far transcends the fear of legal punishment, that this dangerous imposture cannot be wholly restrained by examples made in the past, or possible in the future. We would therefore urge, both upon those who have vainly sought temporary invigoration from inferior local bitters, under a belief in their individual excellence, or those who have used them supposing them to be identical with, or similar in their effects to HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, to DEMAND AND OBTAIN THE GENUINE ARTICLE!

Observing that it is authenticated by—A label with an admirably executed vignette of St. George triumphing over the Dragon, and a diminutive note of hand at the foot, bearing the fac-simile signature of the firm—HOSTETTER & SMITH. Also by a bronze label on the opposite side of the bottle, with directions for use. The name of the article is blown in the bottle, and over the cork is a metallic cap, on which is also impressed the name of the article, together with a medallion head in the centre. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is sold ONLY in bottles (singly or in cases,) and under no circumstances is it ever sold in bulk.

With this caution, we beg to couple a hope that it may not be heedlessly disregarded by those who, in pursuit of genuine information regarding the subject of this Almanac may give the following pages something more than a cursory glance.

The Tide of Public Opinion.

IT has often proved a wearisome task to convince mankind of a great truth, which though eventually established, brings no profit to the laborious discoverer, worn out in the effort. But when, sooner or later, it is ascertained and proven beyond peradventure, the tide of public opinion sets in favor of him who successfully urges it, with a volume and force which bears him on to fortune and a high reputation. It was the lot of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters to be attended with a speedy and exceptional success. So marked were the benefits resulting from its use, so conspicuous its adaptability to the medicinal wants of the household, that skepticism was conquered in advance. Public opinion regarding it has known no ebb from the outset, and foremost among those who have advocated its use, are practitioners who have enjoyed the best opportunities of observing its action, and contrasting its effects with those of ordinary specifics.

Persons engaged in avocations the most diverse, the merchant, the artisan, the miner, the professional man, the agriculturist, the mariner, alike bear evidence to its protecting and remediable influence. Some of its grandest successes have been won where endemic maladies and climatic influences render life precarious and health a problem, and there is a marked concurrence in the evidence which establishes its efficacy as a means of preventing disease, and fortifying the system against it. For the more prevalent disorders which, simple in their origin, and easily conquered at the outset, multiply and give birth to each other, and eventuate in general and serious bodily disturbance, it has proved to be a safe and thorough remedy, and there is no aspect in which it is viewed with wider esteem than as a FAMILY MEDICINE, at once convenient, prompt and thorough.

In this era of enlightenment, the violent remedies and so-called heroic treatment that once dominated the practice of medicine, are viewed with a feeling nearly akin to horror. The Bitters presents the best modern succedaneum for the barbarous medicinal aids of the old school. Derived from the purest botanic sources, sanctioned in the highest quarters efficacious, and unobjectionable in composition, it is not surprising that the tide of public opinion in its favor gains in volume as the years flow by. Its sphere of usefulness widens as its merits become better known and appreciated.

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS.

THE Californian's opinion of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is best evidenced by the yearly increasing sales of the medicine in this State. Ever since the gold fever of '49 raged like an epidemic throughout the Union, the popularity of the great tonic has been rapidly growing all along the Pacific seaboard. The momentous discovery which transformed a well nigh trackless waste, inhabited by a few wretched Indians, into a congeries of camps teeming with life and activity, whose population daily thinned by disease, was replenished by fresh hordes of gold seekers arriving from the States, brought with it dangers to which those of the fabled Hesperides were trifles indeed. Disease, in the most terrible forms, ravaged the diggings unchecked. Fiery stimulants, poured down with frightful recklessness, aided the mischief. Not until HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS arrived at the camps was any change for the better observed in the health of the miners. Then, indeed, it was speedily perceptible. Not only was the medicine found to be an absolute specific for malarial fever of various kinds, but a reliable safeguard against them. Nor did it prove less reliable as a restorative of vigor to the miner enfeebled, worn out and depressed by toil, exposure and fatigue. Disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, caused by bad water, food and imprudence in the use of liquors, were also among the maladies for which its efficacy was soon made apparent, and it was speedily recognized as a fine medical stimulant. Many an old digger can recall the delight with which the arrival of a fresh consignment of the Bitters was hailed at the camps when the old supply had given out.

As the mining industry spread on the Pacific coast, the growth in reputation of the Bitters kept pace with it. In Colorado, Nevada and Idaho the medicine is as well known, and as thoroughly appreciated, as it is in the Nugget State. In the most distant and secluded camps, in the agricultural districts, and in the large commercial towns, its merits have not been heralded in vain by its early success in the days of '49. Few such opportunities as the one then afforded it, have fallen to the lot of any remedy, and that opportunity was fully improved.

A MAN who has happened to have a good deal of experience says: "Stand anywhere but four feet to the left of a woman when she hurls an old bottle at a hen."

TO KEEP JUICE OF A PIE FROM BOILING OVER.—Wet the edges of both crusts, press tightly together, stick a fork several times through the upper crust to allow the steam to escape.

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS is a medicine specially adapted to the wants of new settlers, pioneer miners and western emigrants—in fact, of all persons who are called upon to endure hardship, undergo unusual fatigue, and encounter the dangers of an unaccustomed or unhealthful climate. It braces the system, compensates it for a diminution of vigor, and, in short, is the finest known medicinal preparative for a life of outdoor endurance and peril from disease. The medical profession, no less than the public on this seaboard, recognize these facts, nor has the press been backward in voluntary tributes to the excellence of a medicine, whose career has been so closely identified with the early history of California.

HERSCHEL'S TABLE FOR FORETELLING THE WEATHER.

This table and the accompanying remarks, originally formed by Dr. Herschel, and approved with some alterations, by the experienced Dr. Adam Clarke, are the result of many years' close observation, the whole being on a due consideration of the sun and moon in their several positions respecting the earth. They show what kind of weather will most probably follow the entrance of the moon into any of its quarters: so probably, indeed, that it has been seldom found to fail. If the new moon, first quarter, full moon or last quarter happens—

BETWEEN	IN SUMMER.	IN WINTER.
12 and 2, morning,.....	Fair.....	Hard frost, unless wind be S. or W.
2 and 4 ".....	Cold, with frequent showers.	Snow and stormy.
4 and 6 ".....	Rain.....	Rain.
6 and 8 ".....	Wind and rain.....	Stormy.
8 and 10 ".....	Changeable.....	Cold rain if wind be W.; snow if East.
10 and 12 ".....	Frequent showers.....	Cold and high wind.
12 and 2, afternoon,.....	Very rainy.....	Snow or rain.
2 and 4 ".....	Changeable.....	Fair and mild.
4 and 6 ".....	Fair.....	Fair.
6 and 8 ".....	{ Fair, if wind N. W.; rainy if	{ Fair and frosty if wind N. or N E.;
8 and 10 ".....	wind S. or S. W.....	rain or snow if S. or S. W.
10 and midnight,.....	Fair.....	Fair and frosty.

OBSERVATIONS.—1. The nearer the time of the moon's change, first quarter, full or last quarter are to midnight, the fairer will the weather be during the seven days following.

2. The space for this calculation occupies from 10 at night till 2 next morning.

3. The nearer to midday, or noon, the phases of the moon happen, the more foul or wet weather may be expected during the next seven days.

4. The space of this calculation occupies from 10 o'clock in the morning to 2 in the afternoon.

MUCH TOO PROFESSIONAL.—A professor had a particular set of illustrations, from which he could not well deviate without risking a blunder. In illustrating the powerful effects of prussic acid, he was wont to inform the class that a drop placed on a dog's tongue was sufficient to kill him. On one occasion, when lecturing to his class, he said, "Mr. Boggles," addressing a young man, whose chance for passing was very slender, "what can you say of prussic acid? is it powerful or otherwise?" "It is rather powerful," said the student dubiously.

"Rather powerful!" said the professor, indignantly; "put a drop on your tongue and it would kill a dog!" The shout of laughter which followed, and Boggles' confusion, revealed to the professor his illustration had served a double purpose.

"YES," said a stalwart milkman, "he's fit to go to the legislature. When he drove a cart for me he used to swindle my customers out of five dollars a day and divide with me, and if he does as well as that by the town, he'll be a mighty valuable representative."

YERBA SANTA TROCHES

For Strengthening and Clearing the Voice

AND FOR

Relieving Coughs, Hoarseness, and Relaxed or Sore Throat, Whether induced by cold or unusual exertion of the vocal organs.

PREPARED BY

REDINGTON & CO., WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS,

529 and 531 MARKET ST., SAN FRANCISCO.

SEARBY'S YERBA SANTA TROCHES

Contain nothing deleterious, and therefore may be taken as freely as necessary. To secure the best effect from their use, they should not be eaten, but one or two should be allowed to dissolve SLOWLY in the mouth. This can be repeated as often as required.

~~For~~ SINGERS and PUBLIC SPEAKERS will derive great help and comfort from their use.

ASK FOR

Mason & Pollard's Anti-Malaria, or Fever and Ague Pills.

Would you escape Fever and Ague, and preserve health and vigor during the sickly season, make occasional use of Mason & Pollard's Anti-Malaria, or Fever and Ague Pills, as a preventive.

If you are attacked with Chills and Bilious Fever, or have been a victim to such disease, and used other so-called remedies without permanent relief, seek at once the safest and surest cure, by using, according to directions, Mason & Pollard's Anti-Malaria, or Fever and Ague Pills. They are the result of twenty years' experience in the treatment of bilious disease, and are practically adapted to a wider range of maladies than any other remedy. As a FAMILY MEDICINE in a bilious climate, they will effect a cure in three-fourths of the diseases incidental to a family. They cure malarious disease without disturbing the vital functions, or deterring from daily occupation. They are strictly vegetable, and contain nothing deleterious to health. They may be given (dissolved or otherwise) to the youngest child. They are gently laxative, but do not purge. One pill twice daily, one hour before eating, will cure the worst case of Dyspepsia.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

"I THINK the goose has the advantage of you," said the landlady to an inexperienced boarder, who was carving. "Guess he has, mum—in age," was the quick retort.

"No, indeed," said the widow, "I shan't marry Mr. Thug. He wants me without incumbrance—at any rate he gave my boy a toy pistol yesterday."

SYMPATHIZING FRIEND.—“Hullo! What’s the matter, old man? Tooth-ache? Tut-t-t. Have it out. If it was mine, I’d ——”

SUFFERER.—“If it was yours! Yes, so would I.”

A MAN lectured an hour and a half on the topic, “Has the Oyster brains?” “I’ll answer that question,” said a hearer, “if you will cease. The oyster has brains, for he knows when to shut up.”

From J. H. Cain, Monmouth, Ill., June 7, 1882:

I and my wife are subject to biliousness and costiveness, and by using Hostetter’s Stomach Bitters, it has done us more good than anything we tried.

A CLERGYMAN was met by a woman who has little reverence for the cloth. “Tell me,” said she, with a benignant smile, which did not, however, disguise the acidity of her question, “why you close your church in the summer? Do not your parishioners require to be protected from the evil one in the warm weather, as well as in the cold?” “Oh! bless your soul, no,” was the prompt response, “the evil one never stays in town in July and August. He follows the rest of the world to the watering places.”

From P. Conigar, Monroe City, Mich., February 17, 1883.

I am afflicted with asthma, and have been using Hostetter’s Stomach Bitters, and I find it relieves me.

THINGS one would wish to have expressed differently. — Musical Maiden: “I hope I am not boring you, playing so much?” Enamored Youth: “Oh, no! Pray, go on! I—I’d so much sooner hear you play than talk!”

“Do the subjects of the King of Dahomey keep the Sunday?” was asked of a missionary. “Yes,” he replied; “and everything else they can lay their hands on.”

THE OFFSPRING OF MALARIA.

MALARIAL disease is not only a terrible thing in itself, but is also the parent of other maladies. It breeds nervous complaints, fosters a tendency to rheumatism, disorders the liver and weakens the digestive organs. Moreover, when it is supposed that the miasmatic poison is thoroughly expelled from the system, it manifests its presence in inexplicable symptoms, which, except to the experienced physician, are ambiguous in their origin, and are often attributed to far other causes than the true one. Quinine, when persistently used to overcome fever and ague, and bilious remittent, aggregates in the system, causing caries of the bones, pains in the joints and muscles, and other injurious after consequences, inimical to health and comfort. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a safe antidote to the malarial poison, rooting it out completely, but without imperilling after health, like the pernicious alkaloid which was once considered the sole specific for this disease. Not only does it cure, but it is potent to prevent. The seasons when malaria recurs in an endemic form are now far less dreaded than of yore, in wide sections of our country, where the fell disease was regarded by the inhabitants as an unavoidable evil, and where the only trust in medication was to mitigate the violence of its attacks. The activity which this superb tonic imparts to the circulation, its invigorating effect upon the digestive organs, and its regulating influence upon the liver, constitute it a reliable alternative of those abnormal conditions of the system, favorable to the contraction of this dire complaint, in one or more of its harassing and distressing forms.

WHITEWASH that will not rub off.—Mix up half a pail full of lime and water, ready to put on the wall; then take one-fourth pint of flour, mix it with water, then pour on it a sufficient quantity of boiling water to thicken it, and pour it while hot into the whitewash; stir all well together, and it is ready for use.

A TALL man having rallied his friend on the shortness of his legs, the friend replied: "My legs reach the ground. What more can yours do?"

OF COURSE.—A valiant young man went down to enlist in the militia. Adorned with youth and beauty and a new silk hat, he presented himself to the recruiting officer and stated his errand. The stern, battle-scarred veteran looked solemnly at him and said: "Suppose, sir, that you were in command of a company; that in your rear was an impassable abyss; that on either side of you arose perpendicular precipices a hundred feet in height: that in front of you stood the enemy, ten times your number; young man, what would you do?" "General," said the embryonic Napoleon, without a moment's hesitation, "General, I should resign!"

JONES: "What did you think of my argument, Fogg?" Fogg: "It was sound, very sound. [Jones is delighted.] Nothing but sound, in fact."

WHEN a man is about to be told a secret he shuts the door. When it is a woman, she opens the door, to be sure no one is listening outside.

A CHUNK OF DUTCH WISDOM.

"Why, Hans, you have the most feminine cast of countenance I have ever seen."

"Yaw, I know de reason for dat—mine moder vas a voman."

MUCILAGE.—An excellent mucilage may be made by taking one ounce of gum tragacanth, as much corrosive sublimate as will lay on a silver five-cent piece; put in a jar and pour over it one quart of cold soft water; let stand twenty-four hours, then stir and it is ready for use, and will keep a long time.

From Soren Mathison & Co., Chicago, Illinois,
June 5, 1882:

Our sales of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters have nearly doubled this year, without any exertion on our part, but owing to the fact that the people appreciate the superior quality and large curative powers it possesses.

"Now, my son," said a cabinet-maker to his little boy, "you must remember that sins are like nails driven into a post. Repentance is merely pulling the nails out, but the scars—the holes—remain." "But, I say," interrupted the youth, "can't we kinder putty 'em, as you do the worm holes in the rotten bass wood that you use to make real English oak bedroom sets?"

From Mrs. R. Stubbs, Brooklyn, New York,
August 5, 1882.

I have been troubled with dyspepsia for a number of years; have tried medicines of all kinds, and of no avail, until some one recommended Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which I can say has done me more good than all the medicines or doctors that I have tried.

A FOND mother wrote to an enthusiastic young lady, who had established a physiology class for girls: "Do not teach my Mary Ann any more about her insides. It will never do her any good, and it's rude."

FRESE'S HAMBURG TEA.

THE GREAT FAMILY MEDICINE.

RELIABLE, SIMPLE, EFFECTUAL.

As a family medicine it has no superior. It has proved itself to be a most certain and efficacious remedy for such diseases as are caused by an impure state or a superfluity of blood.

It restores the appetite, strengthens the nerves, cleanses the stomach, adds tone and vigor to the digestive organs, induces a mild and healthy action of the bowels, causing little or no discomfort. It regulates the system generally by assisting Nature to throw off and free itself from all impurities; restores the functions to their normal state, and thus prevents the encroachment of diseases.

Composed of herbs only, it can be given safely to infants. It is emphatically a family medicine.

Parents cannot be too careful in watching the slightest symptoms of illness in their little ones. A very large proportion of the ordinary ailments so common among children can be banished by the timely use of this valuable family medicine.

It is Nature's own remedy, and should be used in the family to the exclusion of all other medicines. It removes the distress caused by eating hearty food or overloading the stomach, and will be found effectual as a family remedy where a simple purgative only is needed.

It corrects the derangement of the stomach and bowels, expels from the system the cause of disease, which if allowed to remain would soon undermine and destroy the health.

HAMBURG TEA has proved itself to be all that is claimed for it: A reliable and successful family medicine; and as such we can confidently recommend it, feeling assured that it will not disappoint any reasonable expectation.

NO FAMILY SHOULD BE WITHOUT IT.

YOUNG LADY (to Fred, with thin legs.)—"Fred, I always admired your courage; I knew when I first laid eyes on you that you were brave to rashness."

FRED (coming up smiling.)—"Oh, don't, my dear. Why do you say that?"

YOUNG LADY—"Why any man must have courage who can trust himself long at a time on such legs as yours."

From C. H. Bahrenburg, M. D., Marietta, O.,
July 12, 1882:

I can honestly say that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is always a saleable article; its medicinal virtues commend it to the public. It keeps its value better than any medicine I know of.

It is useless for physicians to argue against short-sleeved dresses. The Constitution of the United States says: "The right to bear arms shall not be infringed."

From J. C. De Haven, Council Bluffs, Iowa, May 25, 1882:

I would state that after sixteen years steady sale of your Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, recommending it in hundreds of cases of weakness, debility, &c., I have heard of hardly a single case that has not been benefitted from its use—especially so of women and mothers, worn down and exhausted from indoor overwork and mental strain of family duties—who need a mild and gentle tonic.

THE man who is curious to know how the world could get along without him, can find out by sticking his finger into the Ohio River, then withdrawing it, and looking for the hole.

From T. J. Fritts, M. D., Lakewood, Illinois,
February 1, 1882:

I consider Hostetter's Stomach Bitters an invaluable tonic in debilitated conditions of the system, and especially in convalescence after malarial fevers.

IN the new arithmetic one reads: "In one lot there are four calves and in another two young men with their hair banged. How many calves in all?"

FAILING STRENGTH RENEWED.

A DECLINE in physical energy and a loss of flesh are, usually, concurrent evils. Where the cause is not discovered in some exhausting disease, it may safely be attributed to non-assimilation and interrupted digestion. Reform in the action of the stomach is the condition precedent to the recovery of strength and bodily substance, diminished through the inaction of that organ. Moreover, this should be speedily begun. Want of vitality in the system is the precursor of disease, and it is not safe to allow stamina to ebb uninterrupted. Dietetic measures, though highly desirable, are not of themselves sufficient to arrest the progress of decay, and renew vigor in an exhausted physique. They should be regarded and resorted to simply as auxiliaries in the scheme of recovery. The step of prime and earliest importance is the selection and persistent use of an effective stomachic. Popular recognition and professional indorsement indicate Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as the best. Its ingredients are pure, and its effects prompt and thorough. The "fillip to nature" given by an unalloyed stimulant, or the brief impulse to appetite afforded by bitters and tonics of doubtful origin and ephemeral effect, will not answer. The cause lies deeper than a want of appetite. The organ of supply is dormant, is weak, and requires to be aroused and invigorated. It is because the Bitters does accelerate its activity—as well as that of the liver and bowels—and enables it to perform its functions, that failing strength is thoroughly renewed, a healthy secretion and flow of bile promoted, and the bowels maintained in a state of regularity by this leading invigorant and alterative.

IN dealing with furniture, remember to keep water away from everything soluble therein, oil from everything porous, alcohol from varnish, and acids from marble.

SAVE the soot that falls from the chimneys when they are cleaned. Twelve quarts of soot to a hog-head of water makes a good liquid manure, to be applied to the roots of plants.

SIR DOYLE ROCHE, in spite of his unenviable reputation, was capable of something better than mere Irish "bulls." One day Curran declared that "he was quite capable of acting as the guardian of his own honor." Sir Boyle said: "Indeed! I always thought the honorable member was an enemy of sinecures."

"No, papa. I do not wish to marry yet. What I want is a man that does not drink, smoke, chew, snuff, go out nights, gamble, bet, over eat, &c.; in short, a man with no vices, and one who is always good." "My daughter," said Mr. Dusenbery, "you are only a stranger here. Heaven is your home."

To make liquid glue, dissolve 33 parts of best glue in a steam bath, in 30 parts water. Then add gradually, stirring constantly, 3 parts of nitric acid, or enough to prevent the glue hardening when cool.

WIFE.—"Can't you take me to the Yahoo Restaurant some evening, my dear?" "No, darling, it is disreputable." "Then dear, why do you bring home its marked napkins in your pockets?"

SAID a Detroit lady to a gentleman of that city: "You are a musician, I believe?" "No," said he, "if I were the proprietor of a hand organ set expressly to play 'Old Hundred,' I couldn't get seventy-five out of it."

YOUNG folks tell what they do, old ones what they have done, and fools what they intend to do.

THE law can never make a man honest. It can only make him very uncomfortable when he is dishonest.

A WORD TO OVER-WORKED BUSINESS MEN.

THE routine of business life closely adhered to is well calculated to wear out prematurely any but the most vigorous constitution. The clerk who toils early and late at the desk, the merchant who with a mind pre-occupied with business cares, finds little recreation in the few hours he daily snatches from the tyrannous absorption of the counting room, often feels, without the ability to withdraw for a brief season of rest, how inadequate an incentive is, duty on the one hand, to constant overwork, or of gain on the other, to the endurance of daily anxiety.

Overstrained minds and tired bodies often require something more than simple relaxation. Dyspepsia, the besetting ailment of people of sedentary habits, nervousness, its offshoot, loss of appetite and sleep, should be remedied early and thoroughly, else serious bodily or cerebral disorder is to be apprehended. Insomnia, or chronic inability to sleep, unchecked, is one of the most dangerous of maladies, since it threatens the overthrow of intellect, and this disorder is of far more frequent occurrence among persons, who constantly overtax the brain, than is commonly supposed. The removal of these troubles is an easy possibility with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, an invigorant, nervine and corrective of inestimable value to the overwrought business man and brain worker. It remedies weakness of digestion and of the nerves, cheers the mind and strengthens the system. Fortified with this pure tonic, both body and brain are enabled to perform a greater amount of work, unharmed, than they otherwise could, and there is no more reliable means of repairing physical waste and premature decay.

WHAT IS A LETTER ?

A silent language uttered to the eye,
Which envious distance would in vain deny;
A tie to bind, where circumstances part,
A nerve of feeling stretched from heart to heart.

Formed to convey, like an electric chain,
The mystic flash—the lightning of the brain,
And bear at once, along each precious link,
Affection's life pulse, in a drop of ink.

THE LAW OF NATURE.—A very rich old man who had married a young wife, died suddenly, upon which the widow raved like a maniac, and exclaimed to the doctor, who stood by the bedside of the departed, "Oh! I'll not believe that my dear partner is dead; he could not die and leave me! No, no, he's alive; I'm sure he's alive. Tell me, doctor, don't you think so?" "Madam," replied the medical man, with much gravity. "I confess I have the means by which he may be revived. I will apply the galvanic battery." "O no, no!" cried the grief-stricken widow, "hard as it is to bear my fate, I will have no experiments against the law of nature. Let him rest in peace."

COCOA NUT CAKE.—Four cupsful of flour, two cups of sugar, one cupful of milk, five eggs, one cupful of butter, one teaspoonful of soda, two of cream-tartar, one-half of the cocoonut put in the cake, the other half put with the whites of three eggs, and one-half cupful of sugar, and put between the layers of cake. Bake in jelly-pans.

"It's no use to feel of me wrist, doctor," said Pat, when the physician began taking his pulse, "the pain is not there, sir; it's in my head entirely."

SMALL BOY (at dinner table).—"What! all that for grandma?"

MAMMA.—"No, darling; it's for you."

SMALL BOY.—"Oh! what a little bit."

From Matthew Conner, Stuyvesant Falls, New York, June 17, 1882:

I have sold your Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for thirteen years. During the last year I have been troubled with dyspepsia, and took a dose more through accident than any other reason, being in the night and nothing else at hand, and to my astonishment they gave me instant relief. Have taken them since with the best results.

HOW TO USE LARD.—Lard for pastry may be used as hard as it can be cut with a knife, and will make far better paste than if warm. It needs only to be cut through the flour—not rubbed.

From J. M. Jackson, M.D., Bronson, Florida, April 25, 1883:

I have been a dealer in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for sixteen years, and have prescribed it in almost all cases in my practice where there was a tonic needed, and it has proved beneficial in almost every case.

WE may live without poetry, music and art;
We may live without conscience, we may live without heart:
We can live without love, we can live without books—
But civilized men cannot live without cooks.
He may live without books, for what is knowledge but grieving?
He may live without hope, for what is hope but deceiving?
He may live without love, what is passion but pining?
But where is the man that can live without dining?

From Henry Stark, Maspeth, New York, December 11, 1882:

I have taken your Hostetter's Stomach Bitters for some time, and I think they can't be beat; they are just the thing to stimulate the bowels.

REDINGTON & CO'S FLORIDA WATER.

FOR THE HANDKERCHIEF.

This article, possessing the most delicate fragrance of Flowers, is unequalled as a perfume for the Handkerchief.

FOR THE BATH!

Used in bathing, it imparts energy and strength to the system, and gives that softness and delicacy to the skin so much desired by all.

AS A COSMETIC.

It is the most healthful and safest of all cosmetics, containing no deleterious ingredients, being prepared solely from the rich floral perfumes of nature unadulterated by any foreign substance whatever. It is suited for use by the blonde and brunette alike, imparting that beautiful clear softness to the skin so much admired in the fair sex. Probably the most distinctive feature of Redington & Co.'s

FLORIDA WATER,

IS ITS WONDERFUL

REFRESHING POWER.

The sense of smell never tires of it, but seems to find a more intense enjoyment the longer it is accustomed to its use. As a source of pure enjoyment, whether used as a perfume for the handkerchief, the toilet, or the bath, this truly excellent floral water stands quite alone; its freshness, its purity, its delicacy, and its unchangeableness are properties not possessed in even the smallest degree by any other perfume of which we have any knowledge.

REDINGTON & CO'S FLORIDA WATER

USE NO OTHER!

Unexcelled for Toilet Use and for the Bath.

INVIGORATION

REQUIRED BY OVER-SENSITIVE NERVES.

SEDATIVES fail to permanently tranquilize the nerves. Narcotics deaden them. The true want of nerves which are over-sensitive, which keep their possessor awake when sleep should visit the wearied brain, and upon which the slightest noise impinges like the clangor of a trumpet, is invigoration. From what shall this be obtained save from a tonic which gives an impetus to digestion, and enriches the blood with the constituents of nervous, fibrous and muscular tissue. This is precisely what Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has the power to do, and what it does for those who use it. Nervousness, when not the direct result of some terrible organic disease, is traceable to a want of vitality in the system. Co-existent with this will always be found weakness of the stomach, an organ whose feebleness is shared by, or rather reflected in the nervous tissues. As the digestive organ acquires tone through the action of the Bitters, it is found that nervous symptoms diminish, sleep once more refreshes the brain, which is a great nerve centre; the mind drops its burden of dyspepsia-born melancholy, and the nervous invalid at length discovers that things once regarded as grave causes of discomfort, are on the contrary, "trifles light as air," which float across life's horizon without casting a shadow on its surface. He tastes once more the sauce piquante of existence, recognizing its old savor, and is only made conscious of the possession of a nervous system by the pleasant sensations which those experience who enjoy the blessings of vigorous health.

It was an Ohio man who, when a terrible storm set in, one night, rushed into the house of a neighbor and cried out: "Jones, this is the ending up of the earth!" "I'm afraid so! I'm afraid so!" was the reply. "And what shall we do?" "Make our peace with heaven!" The wind blew still stronger, the house began to shake, and the excited man exclaimed, "Jones, you lost five bushels of wheat last fall." "Yes." "And you have your suspicions?" "I have. The man who took my wheat had better own up." "Can you forgive him?" "I can." "Well—" Here the wind suddenly dropped, and after a look through the window, the conscience-stricken man turned and finished: "Yes, if I ever meet him, I'll advise him to call around."

A LADY had in her employ an excellent girl, who had one fault. Her face was always in a smudge. Mrs. ——— tried to tell her to wash her face without offending her, and at last she resorted to strategy. "Do you know, Bridget," she remarked, in a confidential manner, "it is said if you wash your face every day in hot soapy water it will make you beautiful?" "Will it?" answered the wily Bridget, "sure it's a wonder ye never tried it, ma'am."

NEEDLESS PAIN AVOIDED.

PERSONS, whom neglect of proper precautionary measures, have subjected themselves to much needless pain from rheumatism, and often aggravate the effects of their folly by injudicious dosing, while the disease gains strength. The proper course in rheumatism is to tackle the malady in the beginning, with that efficient medicinal check, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Among the voluntary tributes to the thoroughness and promptitude of the great alterative, none are more positive than those which show its value as a preventive and remedy for this complaint.

Rheumatism is very apt to select its victims among those who are subjected to outdoor exposure, in damp, rough or changeable weather. Seamen, miners, laborers, soldiers, farmers, &c., form a large proportion of the rheumatic, and the fact that those whose avocations necessitate arduous physical activity, and whose livelihood is dependent upon constant bodily effort, are thus liable to contract it, shows the special importance to them of medication in the earliest stage of this disease. What a terrible thing for an outdoor laborer, with a family dependent upon him, to be invalided, at the beginning of winter, we will suppose, with a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism! This disabling complaint, which deals such staggering blows at activity, causes such excruciating pangs, and is so difficult to cure by ordinary means, should never be allowed to gain headway, but should be met, battled with and conquered with this genial, safe and effective medicine.

To make a good liniment that should be kept on hand, ready for use in cases of bruises or sprains: Add one-half ounce oil wormwood to four ounces of alcohol.

KEILL estimates the surface of the lungs at 150 cubic feet, or ten times that of the external body. During ordinary respiration, 16 or 17 cubic inches of atmospheric air pass into the lungs 20 times in a minute, or a cubic foot every 5.25 minutes; 274 cubic feet in 24 hours, or a cube of 6.5 feet each way.

FRESH WATER.—The component parts, by weight and measure, is—Oxygen 88.9 weight, and 1 by measure; hydrogen 11.1 weight, and 2 by measure. One cubic inch of distilled water at its maximum density, 39.83°, the barometer 30 inches, weighs 252.7 grains. A cubic foot weighs 62.5 pounds.

TOM CORWIN, of Ohio, once met a negro who had run away from Kentucky, and was living in rags in a free State. "You made a mistake in running away," said the governor, "you had friends, and food, and clothes and money enough south of the Ohio, for I was acquainted with your master. Are you not now in need of all these things?" "Yes," said the negro. "Then you made a mistake in running away." "Governor," said the negro, "the situation in Kentucky is open, with all its advantages, and if you choose to go and occupy it, you can do so."

NINE, sir," observed a social scourge, "I can speak nine languages distinctly; but my father, when alive, could speak no less than fifteen." "Ah!" remarked Douglas Jerrold, "I knew a man who could speak five-and-twenty, and he never said anything worth hearing in any one of them."

A HEALTHFUL STIMULANT OF THE KIDNEYS AND BLADDER.

FOR inaction of the kidneys and bladder, it is a very common mistake to employ remedies which over stimulate and irritate them. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is not one of these, but a wholesome diuretic, with tonic properties, which render it specially valuable to persons suffering from weakness of the organs of urination, or from uterine complaints. The impulse given to the action of the renal organs by the Bitters, never exceeds salutary bounds, and its use in the early stages of maladies affecting them, is greatly to be preferred to those powerful depurents, whose doubtful efficacy is offset by the general mischief they do the system, and the peril of their use in excessive doses. It should be borne in mind that the kidneys afford an outlet for certain impurities, which, retained in the circulation, give rise to rheumatic ailments, gout, dropsy and blood poisoning. The moderate stimulation afforded the renal viscera, when sluggish, by the Bitters, results in the more effectual removal of such impurities, since in the process of secretion of the urine, they are a part of the constituents which go to swell its bulk.

The symptom precedent of the more dangerous disorders of the kidneys and bladder, is inability to discharge their contents effectually, sometimes coupled with a frequently recurring desire. This of course is the result of weakness, and of a weakness that increases with dangerous rapidity. The Bitters supplies the organs with vigor, as well as promotes their healthful evacuation, and may be used with the greatest confidence in its purity, as well as efficacy, by those troubled with renal inactivity.

ECONOMY.—When a Spaniard eats a peach or pear by the road side, wherever he is, he digs a hole in the ground with his foot, and covers the seed. Consequently, all over Spain, by the roadsides and elsewhere, fruit in great abundance tempts the taste, and is ever free. Let this practice be imitated in our country, and the weary wanderer will be blest, and bless the hand that ministered to his comfort and joy. We are bound to leave the world as good, or better than we found it, and he is a selfish churl who basks under the shadow, and eats the fruit of trees, which other hands have planted, if he will not also plant trees which shall yield fruit to coming generations.

A CHICAGO Judge riding in the cars, from a single glance at the countenance of a lady by his side, imagined that he knew her, and ventured the remark that the day was pleasant. She only answered "Yes." "Why do you wear a veil?" "Lest I attract attention." "It is a province of gentlemen to admire," replied the gallant man of law. "Not when they are married." "But I am not." "Indeed!" "Oh, no, I'm a bachelor." Then the lady quietly removed her veil, disclosing to the astonished magistrate the face of his mother-in-law.

NARROW ESCAPE.—"Stole any chickens dis week, Brudder Jones?" said a searching class leader to a member of suspiciously thieving proclivities. "No, sah—tank de Lor." "You'se done well," said the leader, and passed on, while Brudder Jones turns to Brudder Brown and whispers, "Lucky he said chickens; if he'd said ducks he'd a had me, shuah."

SCENE UPON A STEAMBOAT.

CAPTAIN 'awfully riled.)—"How come you to turn in there with your boots on?"

PASSENGER.—"Why, do you expect a fellow to turn in among all these insects barefooted?"

The captain retires without making any reply.

From J. A. Walker, Central Village, Connecticut, May 24, 1882:

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the best tonic Bitters that I sell, and hard working farmers, and all laborers who use them, speak in the highest terms of them.

A MEMBER of the rhetorical class in a certain college had just finished his declamation, when the professor said: "Mr —, do you suppose a general would address his soldiers in the manner you spoke that piece?" "Yes, sir, I do," was the reply, "if he was half scared to death, and as nervous as a cat."

REENTER.—"I don't see why you object to children. Doesn't the Bible say, 'Of such is the kingdom of heaven?'"

Landlord.—"Yes, ma'am: heaven is the place for children; but to put 'em in a house down here on earth is about as reckless a thing as you or I could do, if we own the house. The Bible suits me as to children

From F. H. Zuluſ, Port Byron, New York, June 16, 1882:

I have no hesitation in recommending Hostetter's Stomach Bitters to any one suffering with poor health, or any disease arising from a deranged stomach. Armed with this medicine, all climates, and changes of water and food, may be faced without fear.

A LITTLE thieving is a dangerous part, But stealing largely is a noble art; 'Twas mean to rob a henroost of a hen, But stealing thousands makes us gentlemen.

PHILOSOPHIC REMEDY FOR COSTIVENESS.

MANY people, usually those of the ignorant and credulous class, are not satisfied with the effects of a medicine which does not wrench and convulse their interior economy in its operation. They cannot conceive how mild measures can benefit them. Probably this is why, in many instances, drastic cathartics are adhered to long after their ill effect are shown by irregularity of the bowels, confirmed and rendered chronic through their persistent use. More enlightened minds perceive in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters a more philosophic and healthful means of working off obstructions of the bowels than habitually drenching them. A degree of relief in the stomach and liver, correspondent with that experienced in the organs first mentioned, is speedily felt by those who use this beneficent medicine. From the vegetable kingdom are derived those elements, which united, constitute it a sterling alterative, as well as invigorant. It does not cause the violent internal commotion produced by the super-potent laxatives once in vogue, but is infinitely more effective. No more reliable means exists of entirely removing debris which would poison the system, if allowed to incumber the channels for its exit, and while the medicine thoroughly cleanses, it also invigorates them. To the promotion of the digestive process, active bilious secretion and a vigorous performance of the depurating function of the kidneys, it is also a salutary contributor, and its use in all cases involving debility or inactivity of the organs mentioned, invariably proves of material benefit to the invalid. Its early use for complaints to which it is adapted, tends to render its victory over them easier and more permanent in its effects.

At a recent railroad dinner, in compliment to the legal fraternity, the toast was given: "An honest lawyer, the noblest work of God," but an old farmer in the back part of the hall rather spoiled the effect by adding, in a loud voice, "And about the scareest."

FOR laws of changeless justice bind,
Oppressor with oppressed;
And close as sin and suffering joined,
We march to fate abreast.

FOR NEURALGIA.—Prepare horse-radish, by grating and mixing in vinegar, the same as for table purposes, and apply to the temple when the face or head is affected, or the wrist, when the pain is in the arm or shoulder.

MR. PENDLETON having said, in one of his speeches, that it is an appalling fact, that there wasn't money enough in the country to pay the taxes, if the people were required to pay them all in one day. Senator Morton replied as follows: "Well, now, that is a tremendous thought; and it is also an appalling fact that if the people were required to eat in one day, all that they now eat in the course of the year, they would inevitably burst."

DAMP WALLS.—Line the damp part of the wall with sheet lead, rolled very thin, and fastened up with small copper nails. It may be immediately covered with paper. The lead is not to be thicker than that which lines tea chests.

"MAKE my son a gentleman" said a woman to King James of Scotland. "I can make him a lord, if you wish, but I cannot make him a gentleman."

THE SHEET ANCHOR OF THE DYSPEPTIC.

HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS is the sheet anchor of the dyspeptic. When every medicinal reliance fails, and other specifics prove futile, this ever shows itself worthy of the faith reposed in it. No woe-begone, nervous, irritable sufferer from this universal ailment seeks its aid in vain. Not only does it tone and regulate a weak stomach, restoring appetite and enriching the circulation, but it removes that restlessness, nervousness and anxiety of mind which are the reflected mental symptoms of the local trouble. Heartburn, distension and wind on the stomach, sour eructations, inability to sleep, biliousness; in fine, all the indicia of want of tone in the digestive region are entirely removed by it.

Mere stimulants of appetite—which many so-called tonics simply are—do not meet the requirements of a dyspeptic stomach. It is not appetite, but the ability to gratify it without discomfort, that needs renovating. Many dyspeptics eat voraciously and suffer proportionately afterward. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is an invigorant, not only in claim but in reality, since it imparts the tone which, wanting in the stomach, as in a musical instrument, impairs its efficiency, but which once restored, renders its dual operations of digestion and assimilation harmonious and agreeable. This accomplished, eating affords renewed gratification, nervousness disappears as strength returns, the mind recovers buoyancy, and repose becomes tranquil and refreshing. No more reliable stomachic can be recommended to persons of sedentary pursuits, and to those in whom close application to study and indoor avocations, unrelieved by adequate exercise, are apt to beget dyspeptic symptoms. An early resort to this benign specific should be had when such indications of disease are first observed.

BRIGHT hopes that shine like stars sublime,
Go down in wane of freedom;
And true hearts perish in the time,
We feel that most we need them;
Yet never sit we down and say,
There's nothing left but sorrow;
We tread the wilderness to-day,
The promised land to-morrow.

CHRISTIANITY, if it means anything, means sixteen ounces to the pound, three feet to the yard, a just weight and a just measure. It means honesty in all dealings, purity in all conversation, a charity as broad as the race, unflinching integrity, sympathy and humanity to man. With these there can be no compromise.

A MAINE grocer, who had just "experienced religion," acknowledged in meeting that he had been a hard sinner, cheated customers by adulterating his goods, &c., but, being converted, would repay any one he had wronged. Late that night he was awakened by a ring at his door bell. "Who are you, and what do you want?" he asked. "I'm Bill Jones. You said to-night you would repay those you had cheated. Give me that $100 you've owed me so long." "Can't you wait till morning?" "No, I ain't going to wait till then and stand in line all day." He was paid.

A BACHELOR and a spinster who had been schoolmates in youth, and were about the same age, met in after years, and the lady chancing to remark "that men live a great deal faster than women," the bachelor returned, "Yes, Maria; the last time we met we were each 24 years old; now I'm over 40, and I hear you haven't reached 30 yet." They never met again.

PSEUDO-REMEDIES AND THE TRUE SPECIFIC FOR LIVER DISORDER.

YELLOW may be admirable in the sunflower, but in the human countenance it is by no means captivating. The liver is responsible for the abnormal tint, and the natural hue of health can only be restored by regulating that organ. Constipation, sick headache, fur upon the tongue, an unpleasant breath, dizziness on rising, pains in the right side and under the right shoulder blade, are also concomitants of liver disorder. For this complaint and all its symptoms, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is an incomparable specific, arousing the liver when dormant, counteracting a tendency to congestion, and painlessly relaxing the over-burdened and inactive bowels. As between purgatives, mineral or otherwise, which effect a copious discharge, but at the same time gripe and weaken the intestines, and this fine aperient, there can be no possible hesitancy in the choice. More harm is done to the system by violent cathartics than most people imagine. They beget abdominal weakness, which sometimes proves chronic, so that the enfeebled bowels are constantly alternating between a state of constipation, which is the effect of the reaction ensuing upon the use of such cathartics, and the undue relaxation which is the primal consequence of taking them. Moreover, so many of them do not act upon the liver at all. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is far better adapted to the needs of the bilious, since the gentle stimulus which it gives to the action of the great secreting gland and the intestines, is productive of healthful results, impossible through the agency of mercury, podophyllin, jalap, and other antiquated no-remedies for chronic biliousness. Neither in composition, operation or after-effects, can the slightest objection be urged against this most popular and salutary of anti-bilious medicines.

OPPRESSION shall not always reign,
There dawns a better day,
When freedom burst from every chain
Shall have triumphant sway;
The right shall over might prevail,
And truth, like Hero, armed in mail
The hosts of tyrant wrong assail,
And hold eternal sway.

AN old man who had been badly hurt in a railroad collision, being advised to sue the company for damages, said: "Wa'al, no; not for damages. I've had enough of them. But I'll just sue 'em for repairs."

A PRACTICAL PARTY.—Tourist fisherman, No. 1—"Any fish about here, my man?" Scot—"Nae, yo'll get nae fish about here." Tourist fisherman, No. 2—"But this must be the place a little fat man in a kilt directed us to for a good swim." Scot—"Eh! that's Sandy Mackintosh, an' he's a liar. A man that can tell a deeleebreet lie, wi'out its in the way of gain, is a maist immoral character."

"Is your father a Christian?" said a gentleman to a little boy. "Yes, sir," said the little boy, "but I believe he has not worked at it much lately."

"A REPUTATION," says Josh Billings, "once broken, may possibly be repaired, but the world will always keep their eyes on the spot where the crack was."

POLICE JUSTICE (to witness, with bandaged head.)—"Did he have any provocation when he struck you?"

WITNESS.—"He may have had something of the kind concealed on his person, but it was a brick he struck me with."

From Saml. A. Stonebraker, Black Jack, Kansas,
February 7, 1882:

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are a good preventive of malarial fever and biliousness.

"TREAD LIGHTLY."—A gentleman addresses another whom he does not know, at a party: "This affair is awfully stupid; let's go out and take a drink." "I would like to do it," was the reply, "but I can't leave very well." "Why not?" "Why, you see, I am the one who is giving the party."

From John Fitzgerald, Marco, Indiana, May 6, 1882:

Your Hostetter's Stomach Bitters give universal satisfaction in this malarious district.

A MEDICAL student says he has never been able to discover the bone of contention, and desires to know if it is not near the jaw bone.

THE green grocer is one who trusts the new family in the next block.

"I LIVE in Julia's eyes," said an affected dandy in Coleman's hearing. "I don't wonder at it," replied George, "since I observed that she had a sty in them when I saw her last."

"GUILTY or not guilty?" asked a Dutch justice of a prisoner. "Not guilty." "Den what you want here? Go about your bizness!"

HOPE springs eternal in the female breast; Woman ne'er is, but always to be—dressed.

BREATHING THE GERMS OF DISEASE.

THE denizens of malaria-stricken localities periodically breathe the germs of disease. These germs neither inherent fortitude of constitution, nor the alkaloid quinine, will neutralize. The best safeguard against malaria is a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a medicine also adapted to its eradication in obstinate cases. Fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake are invariably removed by it. In the Far West it is the frontiersman's most highly prized means of medicinal protection; in the dark and damps of the mine it is used as a corrective of its humid and sometimes malarious atmosphere; in the bottom lands of the South, the cotton planter and rice grower regard it as an essential preservative of health, imperilled by miasmatic exhalations, which impregnate the air, and form a pestilential offset to the fertility of the rich alluvial soil. To the residents of unhealthy tropical countries it has been an especial boon, for there malarial disease assumes its most virulent and destructive types, and disorders of the liver, stomach and bowels, for which it is a remedy, are particularly rife.

In cases of fever and ague, and bilious remittent, it is observable that the organs chiefly affected, seem to be the liver and spleen. Upon these Hostetter's Bitters exerts a direct and potent influence, reforming their irregularities, renewing their tone, activity and vigor, and obviating also that uncertain, variable condition of the bowels which usually accompanies their disorder. Dyspepsia, also a tormentor of the bilious, is permanently removed by this medicine of multifarious uses, pure composition and time-honored reputation.

TWINS.—"So you have got twins at your house," said a neighbor to little Tommy.

"Yes, mum, two of 'em."

"What are you going to call them."

"Thunder and Lightning."

"Why, those are strange names to call children."

"Well, that is what pa called them as soon as he heard they were in the house."

"If you would be truly happy, my dear," said one New York lady to another, "you will have neither eyes nor ears when your husband comes home from the club." "Yes, I know," answered the other wearily, "but what am I to do with my nose?"

INQUISITIVENESS REBUKED.—Mistress (to applicant for cook's position) "Why did you leave your last place?" Applicant: "You're very inquisitive, marm; I didn't ax you what for yer last cook left you."

ILL fares the land, to hastening ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates and men decay;
Princes and lords may flourish or may fade,
A breath can make them as a breath has made;
But a bold yeomanry, their country's pride,
When once destroyed, can never be supplied.

"Is there any person you wish me to marry?" said a wife to a dying spouse, who had been somewhat of a tyrant in his day. "Marry the devil, if you like," was the gruff reply. "No, I thank you, my dear. One husband for the same family is enough for me."

A GENTLEMAN being asked by a clergyman why he did not attend the evening prayer meeting, said he could not leave the children. "Why, have you no servants?" "Yes," he replied, "we have two servants, who keep the house and board us; we are allowed but few privileges."

A Medicine of Rational Composition.

NO medicine is rationally composed, of which the ingredients jar, either in their nature or effect. One grand cause of the efficacy of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is, that its ingredients harmonize one with the other. The effect of specifics of great individual value is too often nullified by the attempt to blend them in the form of a composite medicine. The invariable result of such an attempt is, the production of an unwholesome medicine, olla podrida, totally irreconcilable with the stomach, and impossible of assimilation. It can well be imagined what a disastrous commotion the presence of such a mixture in the stomach must cause, and how utterly powerless for aught but evil it is. Medicines of inharmonious composition always interfere with digestion, and defeat instead of furthering the end for which they are taken. There is no delay or obstruction to the tonic or alterative effects of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, from any fault or omission in the blending of its ingredients. Neither do any of them fall short in purity of the high standard originally set up by its manufacturers. The article is to-day what it was thirty years ago, pure, harmonious in its elements, and effective. The only antagonism to its prompt action not found in the obstinacy of the disease itself, is to be looked for in the carelessness of those who thwart its benign operation by imprudence. No invalid should forget that a regard for sanitary precautions is an important item in the health-restoring process.

Not only are the ingredients of the Bitters among the most effective known to the medical botanist, but its basis of pure spirits is one of the finest and most desirable means of accelerating and confirming the effects of the medicinal elements in combination with it. The sense of thorough invigoration which this tonic soon induces, no less than the prompt relief which it affords, shows how admirably it is adapted to the stomach, and how completely it is assimilable by the system. Well will it be for the invalid who reads this Almanac, if his eyes make apparent to him how desirable it is to
